

BLOODY SACRIFICES OF BRITISH ON BATTLEFIELD IN GALLIPOLIS

Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton Reports on Campaign Against the Turks, and Shows Blunders and Shortcomings of English Officials.

LONDON, January 7.—Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton's report on the British operations on the Gallipoli peninsula was published in the official Gazette. It tells the story of the campaign on the peninsula from the beginning of May to the middle of October.

Probably no more important contribution to the history of the present war has yet been made. The report throws light on the great landings at Anzac and Suvla bay, August 7, which have been the subject of strong attacks upon the military administration of the government, the whole operations requiring the combined action of the army and navy.

The handling of the masses of troops within a limited area probably was the most complicated ever undertaken, and military men are not surprised that some important details failed to work out as planned.

The Suvla bay landing failed to achieve its object, the report shows, partly because the force consisted largely of untried troops, under Gen. Stopford, and partly because of the failure of the water supply. The sufferings of the troops for lack of water make painful reading.

No Reinforcements.

Gen. Hamilton bestows the highest possible praise upon the bravery of the men. He believes that after the middle of August the Turks outnumbered the British and had plenty of fresh soldiers and munitions, while the British government was unable to furnish him with the reinforcements he wanted.

The general strongly opposed the abandonment of any of the bases held by the British troops.

The most stirring passages of the document describe the ill-fated landing at Suvla bay and Anzac early in August for securing command of the heights, on the assault on the middle of the peninsula and cutting off from their base the Turkish forces at the lower extremity, where the entire allied armies made their first landing.

This operation began on August 6. The climax was reached at daybreak on the 10th, when the Turks made a grand attack from the summit of Chunuk Bair, hill upon which the middle of the peninsula and cutting off from their base the Turkish forces at the lower extremity, where the entire allied armies made their first landing.

This operation began on August 6. The climax was reached at daybreak on the 10th, when the Turks made a grand attack from the summit of Chunuk Bair, hill upon which the middle of the peninsula and cutting off from their base the Turkish forces at the lower extremity, where the entire allied armies made their first landing.

Simply Overwhelmed.

"First our men were shelled by every enemy gun," he says, "then assaulted by a huge column consisting of no less than a full division plus three battalions. The North Lancashire men were simply overwhelmed in their shallow trenches by sheer weight of numbers. The 1st and 2nd battalions of the North Lancashire and the 5th Wiltshire regiments, which Gen. Hamilton describes as weakened in numbers though not in spirit."

Gunbarrels Red Hot.

"Not here only did the Turks pay dearly for their recapture of the vital crest. Enemy reinforcements continued to move up under a heavy and accurate fire from our guns. Still they kept topping the ridges and pouring down the western slopes of Chunuk river, as if determined to gain everything they had lost. But once they were over the crest they became exposed not only to the full blast of the guns, naval and military, but a battery of ten New Zealand machine guns, which played upon their serried ranks at close range until their barrels were red hot."

Where Generals Fell.

"The Turks came on again and again. Fighting magnificently and calling upon the name of God, our men stood to it and maintained by many a deed of daring the old traditions of their race. There was no flinching; they died in the ranks where they stood. Here Gen. Stopford, here Gen. Stopford, and all their gallant men achieved great glory. On this bloody field fell Brig. Gen. Stopford, who earned his first laurels on Caesar's camp, at Ladysmith. There, too, fell Brig. Gen. Stopford, badly wounded."

"Toward this supreme struggle the absolute last two battalions from the general reserve were now hurried, but by 10 o'clock in the morning the effort of the enemy was spent. Soon their shattered remnants began to trickle back leaving a track of corpses behind them. By night, except for prisoners or wounded, no live Turk was left upon our side of the slope."

Two lesser attacks were made by the Turks the same day, Gen. Hamilton continues.

"By evening the total casualties of Gen. Birdwood's force had reached 12,000, and included a very large proportion of officers. The thirteenth division of the new army under Maj. Gen. Shaw had alone lost 6,000, out of a grand total of 16,500. Brig. Gen. Birdwood was gone and of all his staff men and commanding officers, thirteen had disappeared from the fighting effort. The grand coup had not come off; the Narrows were out of sight and beyond field gun range, but this was not the fault of Gen. Birdwood or any

Both Home Government and Military Leaders Criticised in England

LONDON, January 7.—Both the home government and the generals at the front are severely criticised in the London morning newspapers today as the result of the publication of Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton's report.

The authorities are especially blamed for their failure to meet Gen. Hamilton's repeated demands for reinforcements, the lack of which caused the collapse of the military plans. In contrast to what is termed the inefficiency of the higher commands, the greatest admiration is accorded the heroic conduct of the men under the terrible conditions.

The Times censures the home authorities for their failure to send reinforcements, and says it can find no warrant for the assumption that the great blow from the Anzac region failed solely because the landing at Suvla went amiss.

Chief Cause of Failure.

"On the contrary," the Times adds, "the chief cause of the failure seems to have been not the inexperience of the troops or lack of water, but the incompetence of some of the corps and divisional commanders, and though condemnation falls chiefly upon Gen. Stopford, Gen. Hamilton himself cannot escape some share of the criticism."

The Daily Mail in an editorial says: "The men were glorious, but their generals lacked the insight, energy and decision which are the divine parts of a commander in war."

The Morning Post says the policy was blind throughout, and by turns impulsive and vacillating. It says: "For months the government dithered, delayed, talked and intrigued. They would neither reinforce the troops nor remove them. It is a black record."

Mr. Herrick May Run for Senator.

Myron T. Herrick, former United States ambassador to France, may enter the race for the republican nomination as senator from Ohio, it was reported here today. Several members of the House from Ohio are ready to declare for him, it is said. Ohio will elect a senator next fall. Senator Pomeroy's term expires March 3, 1917.

New Cotton Mills in China.

Through the efforts of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce the Chinese government is to establish two cotton mills in the empire, equipped with American machinery and managed by Americans, according to an announcement of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce today. The two mills are to be erected at Shanghai and Tientsin, and the government is interested to the extent of forty per cent of the cost. The bureau will be to be equipped with 25,000 spindles.

"GET OFF THE EARTH," HE ADVISES HYPHENATES

Judge H. D. Clayton Scores Critics of United States in Addressing Grand Jury.

NEW YORK, January 7.—An invitation to "hyphenated citizens" who put the interests of their native country before those of America, to "get off the face of the earth," has been issued here by United States Judge Henry D. Clayton of Alabama. Judge Clayton's remarks were made yesterday in addressing the grand jury that was impaneled to resume the investigation into the activity of German agents in this country.

"You gentlemen," he said, "are entering upon your duties as American citizens. If any of you have had the misfortune to be born in a foreign country I hope that you can truthfully say now that you love America more than the land of your birth. I have no sympathy with any naturalized citizen who is given to carping criticism of this government, or who cannot say that he loves America first, last and forever. If any citizen has come here from another country to evade military service let him not criticize our institutions here. If he wishes to do so let him get off the face of the earth or go back and fight for the country from whence he came."

Trying to Mind Own Business.

"We do not care what foreigners or foreign nations think of our methods of government. So far they have proved pre-eminently successful. At present we are doing our duty to carry out the precepts of the great father of our country, George Washington, who kept our minds strictly on our own business and avoiding entangling alliances or by meddling in the affairs of European nations."

The grand jurors will continue the inquiry into strikes in munitions plants and explosions in factories and shipyards, which already has resulted in the indictment of Representative Frank Buchanan of Illinois and seven others.

CHINA'S REBELS SUPPRESSED.

Revolution in Yunnan Fails Because of a Lack of Funds.

A dispatch to the Chinese legation says that the Chinese government has dismissed Tan Chi-yao and Jen O Cheng, respectively military and civil governors of Yunnan, for failure to prevent the uprising in that province.

"Gen. Tiao Kuan, with well trained troops, is making progress in the suppression work in Yunnan," the message added. "On account of lack of funds attempts of troublemakers to gain followers fail. With their supplies cut off and internal dissensions among their ranks, continued resistance is impossible. Other provinces are quiet."

Greece Protests Action of Allies.

Charge d'affaires Vouras of the Greek legation here has filed with the State Department copies of two protests from his government against the action of the British and French military authorities at Saloniki in seizing consular and other agents of the central powers there, and otherwise "violating the sovereign rights of Greece" by arresting Greek citizens on their native soil.
